About Richard B. Malmgren

Richard is a native of Sweden where he began riding at age 7. He came to the US in 1996 as a working student under Scott Hassler. Before long he was working full time at Hilltop Farm Inc., where he gained valuable experience in raising, training, and marketing sport horses and earned the job as Sales Manager. He pursued his formal education at the University of Delaware and in 2003 graduated with a Bachelors degree in Business Administration with a Major in Marketing. In 2007 Richard joined the team at Hassler Dressage, LLC and was part of building the business at the training and education center at Riveredge, in Chesapeake City, Maryland. In 2011 he married Jessica Jo Tate, an International Grand Prix Dressage rider. 2013 brought Richard the opportunity to start his own business utilizing his skill with Long Lining. He takes advantage of opportunities to travel back to Sweden and continues to develop his skills with top horsemen including Bo Jena. Richard and his wife split the year between their farms in Middletown, Delaware and Wellington, Florida.
